Guidelines for completing the application form

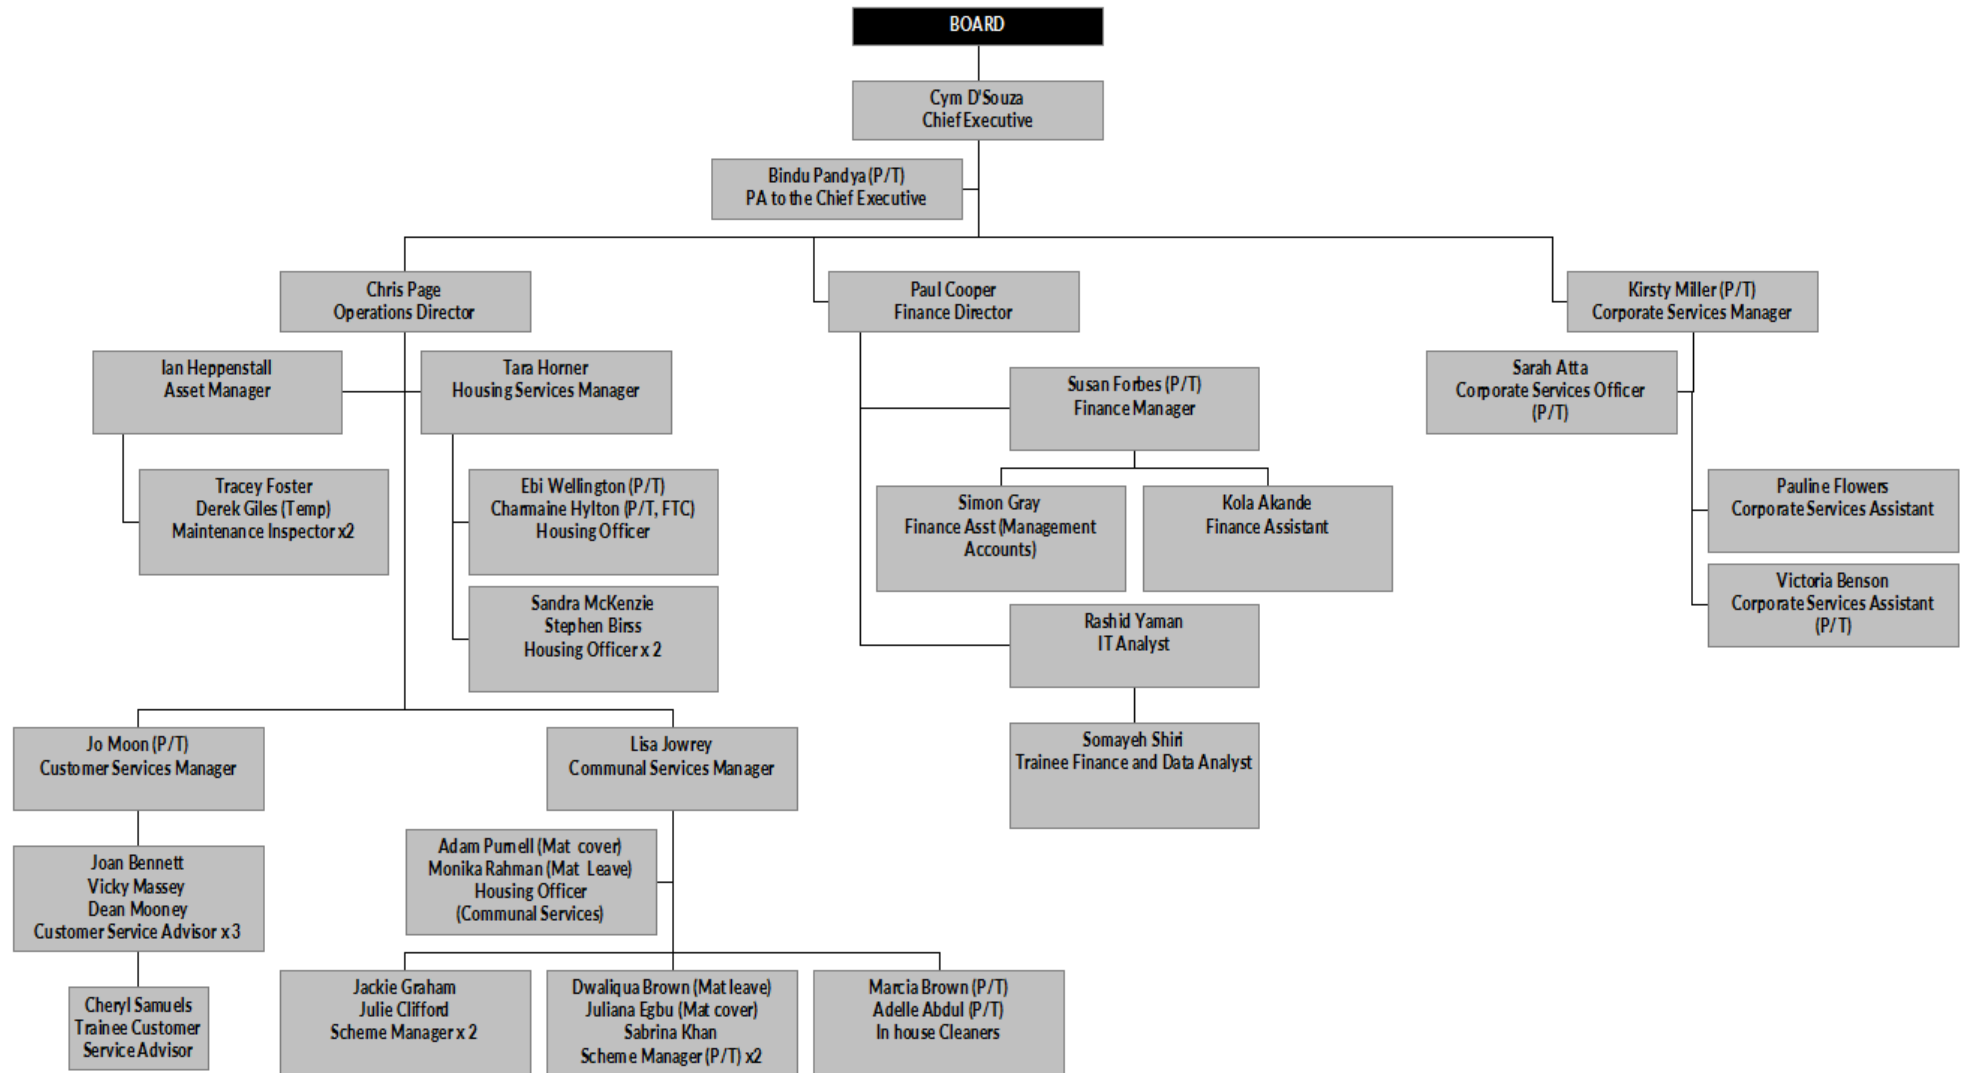

1. Complete all sections of the application, or explain why you cannot do so. The person specification identifies the particular skills and abilities we are looking for. Remember, however, the people who are doing the short listing will be reading many applications. Try to be brief and to the point.
2. Read through the job description and person specification and ensure that your application gives details of how you meet our requirements. In particular, use "Section 6 - additional information" where you feel your current job tasks are not self-explanatory.
3. Try to give examples of how you meet the person specification. It is not sufficient to put in your application - "I have the ability to prioritise".

A more useful statement would be - "My job requires me to work to a timetable of deadlines. If I am asked to do another task, I must ensure I can amend my workload accordingly to fit this in. I take into account the importance of the new task in relation to others before reprioritising my work."

4. Do not think only in terms of your current job. There may be things you have to do at home, at school or on a voluntary basis that shows that you are able to comply with the person specification.
5. When we short list for the post, we want to ensure that you are able to do the job, therefore, tell us about all the experiences and skills you have where they are relevant to the job specification.
6. If there are some parts of the person specification that you cannot do, tell us what you would be prepared to do to attain them e.g. take a college course.
7. If you are unsure about any information provided in the application pack, telephone the office and ask to speak to the Business Support Manager who will connect you to a person who can assist you.
8. If possible get somebody to read your application for you to check that your application reads well, in particular, that spellings are correct and that you have not missed anything important out.
